What We're Learning!

In reading, we continued our study of comprehension strategies by making connections to our reading, such as connections to ourselves or to other text.

In writing, we are finalizing our true story that we have been working on by using our narrative checklist and our editing checklist to guide our work. We will be publishing next week and celebrating our amazing writing!

In math, we continued our work with computation and estimation. We have been working on rounding and estimating through word problems. We also started talking about overestimates and underestimates. We are finishing our work on Native Americans by creating a Voice Thread presentation to accompany our artifacts. More information to come about our parent presentation!

We learned about a river basin system and its different parts. We were able to visit the Mill River and see an authentic river system along with numerous habitats. When we returned from our trip, we spent more time discussing habitats and adaptations. THANK YOU to all of the parents who volunteered to help guide us.
