Third Grade Homework

Estimated amount of time a third grader should generally spend on nightly homework: 30 – 45 minutes. (This may include the time needed for students to check over their work and make it their BEST.)

Every night students will have 20 minutes of reading in a just right book. In addition to reading, there could be a math assignment and/or a language arts assignment.

All assignments will be written down by students daily.

On Friday there will not be any written work assigned and weekend reading will be left up to you.

If you have any questions or concerns about a homework assignment, just write a note on it and send it back. I would be glad to reinforce any concept with your child in the morning.
